Product-Specific Risks

You are exposed to Real estate investment trusts (REITs) risks.

- The Underlying Fund invests in REITs and other companies or funds engaged in property investment, which involve risks above those associated with investing directly in property. In particular, REITs may be subject to less strict regulation than the Underlying Fund itself and may experience greater volatility than their underlying assets.

You are exposed to concentration risks.

- This Underlying Fund may have a particularly concentrated portfolio relative to its investment universe or other funds in its sector making it more susceptible to any single economic market, political or regulatory occurrence. An adverse event impacting even a small number of holdings could create significant volatility or losses for the Underlying Fund.

You are exposed to derivatives risks.

- The Underlying Fund may use derivatives with the aim of reducing risk or managing the portfolio more efficiently. However, this introduces other risks, in particular, that a derivative counterparty may not meet its contractual obligations.

You are exposed to currency hedging risk.

- When a currency hedged share class of the Underlying Fund, seeks to mitigate (hedge) exchange rate movements of a currency relative to the Underlying Fund's base currency, the hedging strategy itself may create a positive or negative impact to the value of the Underlying Fund due to differences in short-term interest rates between the currencies.

You are exposed to sustainability risks.

- A sustainability risk means an environmental, social or governance (ESG) event or condition that, if it occurs, could cause an actual or potential material negative impact on the value of the investment. In managing the Underlying Fund, the Investment Manager does not maximise portfolio alignment with sustainability risks as a separate goal in its own right nor does it precisely attribute the impact of ESG factors on returns for the Underlying Fund.
