Risks

The ILP sub-fund is not listed on the Singapore Exchange and you can redeem only on Business Days through Singapore Life Ltd. In respect of Singapore investors, there is no secondary market for the ILP sub-fund.

Please refer to the “Risk Descriptions” in the Underlying Funds’ Prospectus for a description of the risk factors associated with investing in the Underlying Funds. The risks may include:

Concentration Risk

When the Underlying Fund invests in a limited number of securities, issuers, industries, sectors or within a limited geographical area, it is likely to be more volatile and risky as its performance will be more strongly affected by political, economic, environmental or market conditions within that area or economic sector.

Currency risk

Movements or changes in currency exchange rates could adversely affect the value of the Underlying Fund’s securities and the price of the Underlying Fund’s Shares. Exchange rates can change rapidly and unpredictably for a number of reasons including changes in interest rates or in exchange control regulations.

Derivatives risk

The value of derivatives can be volatile. This is because a small movement in the value of the underlying asset can cause a large movement in the value of the derivative and therefore, investment in such instruments may result in losses in excess of the amount invested by the Underlying Fund.

Emerging markets risk

Emerging markets may be subject to increased political, regulatory and economic instability, less developed custody and settlement practices, poor transparency, greater financial risks, higher volatility and lower liquidity than developed markets.

Equities risk

The value of equities may go down as well as up in response to the performance of individual companies and general market conditions, sometimes rapidly or unpredictably. If a company goes through bankruptcy or a similar financial restructuring, its shares in issue typically lose most or all of their value.

Hedging risk

Any measures that the Underlying Fund takes that are designed to offset specific risks could work imperfectly, might not be feasible at times, or could fail completely. The Underlying Fund can use hedging within its portfolio to mitigate currency, duration, market or credit risk, and, with respect to any designated Share Classes, to hedge either the currency exposure or the effective duration of the Share Class. Hedging involves costs, which reduce investment performance.

Interest rate risk

When interest rates rise, bond prices tend to fall. This risk is greater the longer the maturity or duration of the bond. It also can affect investment grade bonds more than below investment grade bonds.

Market Risk

The value of the securities in which a Underlying Fund invests changes continually and can fall based on a wide variety of factors affecting financial markets generally or individual sectors. Economies and financial markets throughout the world are becoming increasingly interconnected, which increases the likelihood that events or conditions in one country or region will adversely impact markets or issuers in other countries or regions. Furthermore, global events such as war, terrorism, environmental disasters, natural disasters or events, country instability, and infectious disease epidemics or pandemics may also negatively affect the value of the Underlying Fund's investments.

Securities Lending Risk

The use of securities lending exposes the Underlying Fund to counterparty risk and liquidity risk.

SPACs Risk

There is higher volatility in price post-acquisition of a target as the SPAC trades as a listed equity and is subject to Equities risk. The potential target of the SPAC acquisition may not be appropriate for the Sub-Fund or may be voted down by the SPAC shareholders which foregoes the investment opportunity presented post-acquisition.

The above should not be considered to be an exhaustive list of the risks which you should consider before investing into the Underlying Fund. You should be aware that an investment in the Underlying Fund may be exposed to other risks of an exceptional nature from time to time. Please refer to the Underlying Fund's Prospectus for further details.
